

Dear Parent /Guardian,

Hope and pray that you and your family are safe in doors and healthy as you read this letter. On behalf of the Management and staff , I would like to thank you so much for your patience and understanding as we adopt and adept to the changes due to the unprecedented situation . This is a time for us to be appreciative and uphold everyone , who has enabled us to be positive, flexible and resilient during these trying times. We also thank all leaders and government officials both at the state and central level.

These times are unprecedented, challenging and none of us are ready to cope with these challenges. Working from home, though most us are not used to this concept, our teachers are doing their best to provide continuous educational opportunities, practice and experience to our students. Though it is our responsibility (both teachers & parents), we also take into consideration the practical difficulties our students, staff & parents have to face and at the same time we do not want to miss the humanness of being compassionate.

By and large our children are aware of the present circumstances-Covid - 19 and the resultant lockdown. However, they do find it difficult to adjust to the changed scenario.

The coming days are going to be more difficult. There will be more behavioral changes. Youngster may become more aggressive, argumentative ,vehement and may show sheer disregard to family values and norms. This is not abnormal. They are unable to do what they are accustomed to.

It is hard not to yell at our children. Instead try praising them and talk to them in a calm tone. Try helping your teens to communicate with others. Discuss any issue directly without involving anyone else. Bad behavior during these days may be because of anxiety and anger, children also become defensive and stop interacting with others.. To bring about a change avoid criticism, sarcacism, and insults. As suggested by many researches a new family activity can help in changing the situation. Yes, our children may not be perfect in many ways, but many things will not be perfect without them.

Times change, and this testing time too will pass away.

Regards
